The constantly changing battlefield will force you to be always on guard and adapt your strategies to the changes. Though a multitude of varied civilizations exist, scattered throughout the galaxies, two in particular have garnered universal attention. The first were the Humes, an organic species whose technology and adaptability have allowed them to prosper. The other are robots who, despite being inorganic metallic lifeforms, possess similar values to Humes. Their combined love for sports and combat have led to the foundation of the Cosmic League, a galactic-scale battle event.
